

Quality Questions to Promote Thinking

Questioning

Questions showing how things are connected begin with the words _____ .
Brainstorm questions that involve reflective thinking.
What words would begin quantitative questions?
If you want to encourage creativity, what kinds of questions would you ask?
How do questions help you analyze information?
How do questions keep communication logical and clear?
What kinds of questions would you ask yourself to monitor your own understanding?

Fluency, Flexibility, Originality, and Elaboration

List all of the _____ .
List as many _____ as you can imagine.
List all the ways you can come up with to _____ .
Think of a variety of ways to _____ .
Categorize _____ .

Visualization

Can you see a picture in your mind?
Call upon your memory to describe _____ .
What images are most vivid?
What images are formed?

Mind Mapping

Organize the information you have on _____ in a useful manner.
Review the key ideas on _____ by creating a mind map.
Group together similar pieces of information by designing a mind map.
Create mind map to summarize _____ .

Points of View

How would this look to a(n) _____ ?
What would a(n) _____ mean from the viewpoint of _____ ?
How would _____ view this?
If you were a(n) _____ , how would you see this issue?
What would someone of the opposite opinion think?

Analogies

How is a(n) _____ like a(n) _____ ?
How would you feel if you were a(n) _____ ?
If you were a(n) _____ , what would you see, taste, feel, and think?
Brainstorm all the ways a(n) _____ is like a(n) _____ .